AS A RESULT: GREAT RELATIONSHIPS, STRONGER FAITH

by Danny Couch

Joel and Jeff were my anchors in High School. I met them the first time my mother took me to church in the eighth grade. They invited me to youth group; as a result, we became best friends. I didn't attend the same high school as Joel and Jeff, but we got together nearly every weekend; as a result, their parents became my parents. As a high schooler living in a broken home, my relationship with Joel and Jeff kept me interested in church. Their parents insisted that church and youth group were a part of Joel and Jeff's life; as a result, church became a part of my life. Church began to expand to include adults and my minister; as a result, I learned how to love like Christ loves and experiencing it first hand when I moved in with my minister and his family.

Having healthy relationships within the church, as apposed to just going to church saved my life; as a result, I saw what God sees in me and, as a result, I saw a future, which eventually led me to Weatherford.

It is wrong to think we do not need relationships within the church to help us mature in our faith. But most importantly, there may be other "Dannys" out there who need you! Faith is not selfishly seeking things for us. Faith is seeking God who helps us find joy in seeking life for others. It is in our giving that we receive.
