What to Say?

Shannon Moore

What in the world should I say in my final newsletter article? After a decade and a half of writing an article each month, this is the last time I'll have the opportunity to fill the space. That's a lot of pressure!

Do I recount all the major life events that we've shared since 2001? The September 11 attacks (which happened days before my first Sunday); 4 Presidential campaign seasons; the invention of the iPod and the iPhone; the creation and expansion of Facebook and social media?

Perhaps I should reminisce about how my facial hair used to be dark instead of white. Or I could discuss how I found the yoga practice that helped me find some balance in my life; the sabbatical I was granted which gave me the opportunity to train to be a yoga teacher; or the training I thought was going to kill me, but only made me stronger.

Maybe I'll talk about those 30 Christmas Eve services I've helped prepare and participate in—remembering how the candlelit faces solemnly singing "Silent Night" brought a tear to my eye without fail each year. I could recount each dark and mysterious Maundy Thursday service where we shared the Last Supper with Jesus and mourned his death. Or I might describe the triumphant Easter celebrations resplendent with brass and drums and lilies and joyful voices proclaiming, "He is risen!"

My ordination service...decorating the Christmas tree...pumpkins...turkey dinner...holy week...choir programs...Sunday School...staff meetings...church retreats...

I could talk about any of those things and a thousand more. But when it comes right down to it, what I really want to talk about is YOU. You as a congregation and you, the person reading this article. YOU are so very special to me—because you are what makes Central Christian Church so special. I cannot thank you enough for the support, love, and encouragement you have shown to me for the past 15 years and the willingness you have had to let me spread my wings in ministry.

Jesus said "Just as I have loved you, you also should love one another. By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another." Well, CCC, you all sure know how to love. And I know I'll love you till the Lord calls me home—and I'll never, ever forget you.

Peace.
