WHAT A MONTH by Danny Couch

August 8th, I took Eric to Chadron to restart his college and football life. All was going well and better than expected. August 11th, Eric took his place on the football field for his first practice and while running wind sprints, he collapsed and would never recover. The hospital staff worked on him for an hour while I whispered in his ear to wake up. It wouldn't happen. What would follow for the next four weeks was amazing:

- Met with the football team and some players and coaches about the events they witnessed with Eric.
- Came home to Eric's parents who came in from Africa and stayed with us for over a week.
- Helped put together an African wake and funeral service.
- Took Hannah to College Station for orientation, set up her place to begin her Aggie career.
- Saw Sam off to Abilene Christian to begin his new school and football life.
- Dealt with grief on a high level within our own family.
- After two days of class, Sam was unable to continue at ACU and decided to transfer back to Chadron - the place he and Eric met and played football together.
- Held an emotional three-hour wake the day before an emotion funeral for Eric.
- Hosted the Liberian family community at our home and met some wonderful people.
- Sam and I went to Chadron for the home opener on Labor Day weekend. The season has been dedicated to Eric and a very emotional first game was experienced.
- Stayed with Sam in Chadron to get him in class, set up his dorm, and do all the paper work required for school and football (there is a lot).
- Returned home Wednesday, September 7 with a new understanding of life, death, living with a purpose, and Eric's answer to the question, "Why the Church?"

I'll share it with you Sunday!
